THE SEWANEE REVIEW

1892--1898.

VOLUME I. No. 1, NOVEMBER, 1892. VOLUME VI. No.
4, OCTOBER, 1898.

NOTICES FROM THE PRESS.

"The latest addition to periodical literature is 'The Sewanee Review,' of which the first number, dated November, is at hand . . . The tone of the review is dignified, and it is in every way a creditable addition to the list of American periodicals."

—[THE DIAL, Chicago, Nov. 16, 1892.]

"That admirable and dignified quarterly, the Sewanee Review."

—[THE DIAL, Chicago, July 16, 1898.]

"The articles show trained scholarship and capacity for research on the part of the writers, combined with impartiality and courtesy, and entire freedom from sectional narrowness; they are dignified in tone; and they are free from sins against taste."

—[THE CRITIC, New York, April 8, 1893.]

"It is a 'Review' of the old English type, and its articles, expressing careful thought, possess permanent value. We know of no other American publication that performs the same function so well."

—[THE SUN, Baltimore, Md., April 8, 1893.]

"The Sewanee Review is a quarterly journal which is the South's most creditable contribution to magazine literature."

—[THE SCIMITAR, Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 15, 1897.]

"The July number of The Sewanee Review, which we must again remind our readers is the only purely literary review in the United States, comes freighted with matter of a very high order—"

—[THE CHURCH STANDARD, Philadelphia, July 16, 1898.]

"Few American magazines nowadays venture to print articles like the last named ["The Nature of Literature" by the Editor] which is quiet, dignified, conservative, based on the highest and most lasting traditions and the most elevated and commendable conceptions of what literature should be, while it makes neither pretence nor effort at being being striking or startling."

—[THE BOSTON HERALD, June 5, 1898.]

"'The Sewanee Review' has always a decided literary and critical interest."

—[THE COURANT, Hartford, Conn., Aug. 11, 1898.]

THE UNIVERSITY OF THE SOUTH,

SEWANEE, TENN., Oct. 1, 1898.

With the number for January, 1899 The Sewanee Review enters upon its seventh year of publication under the editorship of Professor W. P. Trent. It has been cordially received by the press and by the cultured public of the entire country, and its promoters feel amply repaid for the labor they have expended upon it. It has been self-supporting in the past, but it is now desired to increase its circulation and thus to extend its sphere of influence. It is the single review devoted to strictly literary topics now published in the South, if not in the entire country, and it therefore appeals to a much wider class than it has hitherto reached. The attention of teachers and professional men generally, especially of librarians, is respectfully called to the complete list of leading articles herewith given as well as to the select notices from the press. Some of the most noted libraries of the country are regular subscribers, among them the Boston Public, the Harvard University, and the Newberry of Chicago. Among its contributors have been Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, Professor Brander Matthews, Professor Richard Burton, Judge William Wirt Howe, Bishop Thomas F. Gailor, Professor Oscar Lovell Triggs, Professor Thomas R. Price, Rev. William Norman Guthrie, Professor E. G. Bourne and others.

Your subscription and kindly interest are hereby solicited. Librarians may obtain complete sets of six volumes (November, 1892 to October, 1898) at the price of $15.00 per set until further notice. Each number contains 128 pages and the dates of issue are January, April, July, and October. Subscription $2.00 per annum; single numbers 50 cents. Advertising rates and trade discount will be made known on application.
